Wilson pupils get bus safety lesson

Students from Wilson Elementary School recently had a new learning experience last week, but it had nothing to do with the school's curriculum.

The 500 students at the school participated in a bus safety program in which they learned bus etiquette, reviewed discipline procedures and participated in emergency evacuation exercises.

The program, sponsored by Laidlaw Transit Inc., was held Feb. 15 in the gymnasium and along Wilson Avenue. Cindy Clutts and Sally Barton, two driver-trainers from Laidlaw, had a question-and-answer session with the students and assisted them in the emergency evacuation exercises.

"This was somewhat unique because the whole school participated in the program under the direction of the (Laidlaw) instructors," said Ruth Noeth, principal of Wilson Elementary School.

Noeth said the instructors told the children to be extremely careful around "the safety zone," which is 10 feet on any side of the bus. They were also told to use their "indoor"

VHS students locked out of school building Angry parents demand answers

By Scott Cousins

A large crowd is expected to attend tonight's Venice School Board meeting to find out exactly why students were locked out of the high school.

At least 20 students were locked out Tuesday morning after a fire alarm was pulled at the school. Some of the students had been protesting the suspension of high school principal and assistant superintendent Annette Alexander by Venice School Superintendent James Doughty.

In a police report filed on the incident, officers reported going to the school at about 11:20 a.m. after receiving reports of students milling about outside the building.

Police were told that the students had been locked out after a fire alarm had been activated. A security officer told police that Doughty had instructed him to lock the doors and not let students back in.

As they were talking, Doughty came to the top of the stairs inside the building. Police Chief James Newsome asked what was going on, but was told by Doughty that he didn't have time to talk about it. Another officer also asked, but was reportedly ignored.

Alexander's one-day suspension that apparently started the incident was over a monitoring report on a bathroom that was not filed on time.

She was told to leave the building Tuesday, but was also reportedly escorted from the building by a security guard Wednesday morning.

Police reported another fire alarm was pulled Wednesday, and students apparently walked out again, but returned to classes.

Details were sketchy because Doughty would not speak to the media, school board members, par-

Granite teacher's transfer protested

By Mike Heil
Staff writer

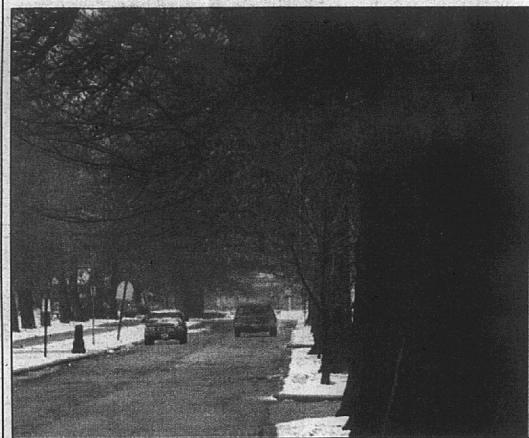

Shortly after the Granite City School Board began its meeting Tuesday night, members called an executive session, sending about 50 angry students and teachers into the halls.

They came in support of teacher Cathy Riebold, who they would like to have reinstated at Granite City High School.

Riebold, who had taught at the school for 25 years, was notified Feb. 9 by the board that she would be transferred to Grigsby Middle School. She was ordered to report next day.

The board met in executive session for nearly three hours to listen to a handful of parents who had earlier in the week, asked the board to speak on Riebold's behalf. After the meeting had resumed, the board addressed parents and students.

Musicians celebrate 50th Band Festival

By Curtiss A. Hartley
Staff writer

Nearly 270 sixth-, seventh- and eighth-grade Madison County musicians gathered Saturday at Edwardsville Middle School for the 50th Madison County Elementary and Middle School Band Festival.

To celebrate the event's golden anniversary, LeVelle Etzkorn, wife of festival founder Claeson Etzkorn, was honored with a certificate and flowers in memory of her husband's work. The items were presented by Dennis Carter, president of the Madison County Instrumental Music Teachers Association, the event's sponsor.

Claeson Etzkorn was Edwardsville's band director in 1949 when he helped organize the event, said Mark Haun, a music teacher at Edwardsville Middle School. Etzkorn also helped organize the music teachers association that same year, Haun said. "We're proud to be hosting this event in Edwardsville for the 50th anniversary, since it started here," Haun said. The festival is held in a different community each year.

Top music students are recommended by their music teachers to attend the all-day festival, Haun said.

"They arrive at noon, and after check-in, the elementary (sixth-grade) band has a full rehearsal while the middle school (seventh- and eighth-grade) band has sectionals," he said. "After an hour and a half, they take a short break, then switch places."

Haun said the sectionals were held in first-floor classrooms, making quite a racket for anyone walking down that hall.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Pay attention to our streets

To The Editor:
I have lived in the Briarcliff area on Briarwood Drive for 43 years.
In that time, the Granite City Street Department has blacktopped Briarcliff Drive and a small part of Briarwood Drive. Mac Warfield was the Superintendent of Streets then. He said they ran out of money and couldn't finish the job.
One time in 43 years, and they didn't finish the job! Unless they call a shovelful here and there a repair job.
You published in the Press-Record on Aug. 17, 1995, that the money was to be used on certain projects. It said that Briarcliff subdivision was to get $100,000 for street and sewer repairs. It sure wasn't used on our area.
I think it is about time the city quit buying more land and take care of what they have. Our streets are a disgrace.

Our children are being brainwashed

To The Editor:
Modesty and virginity — two words we seldom, if ever, hear anymore. And why?
Because we have been brainwashed to believe they are obsolete and much too old-fashioned.
Just look around you. Everything you see and hear promotes sexuality to the absence of morality, caring and love. And how young it starts.
Our children are not allowed to be children very long before bad language, illicit affairs and violence bombard them.
Teen-agers learn quite quickly a kiss good night is blasé and going to bed with someone is always expected.
And why not? They see it on TV, they hear it in the lyrics of many songs and advertisements promote it.
For some reason, they believe having sex just once puts them in no danger.
Are they truly aware of how many unwanted pregnancies occur among teen-agers?
Are they aware of the many diseases that are just waiting for them? Do they know that gonorrhea, chlamydia, genital warts and AIDS are running rampant among our young people?
Are they aware if someday they do get married and want children these diseases could make it hard for them to do so?
Young men, this is just as true for you.
Does anyone remember the days when "going all the way" was looked down upon?
When a mother talked to her daughter about the wonderful gift she possessed and not to give it away freely?
When a father would talk to his boy about how to treat a young lady, telling them they were bound to have certain sexual urges, but to curb them and not be drawn in by peer pressure?
Do parents talk to their children at all about these things anymore? Or have they decided it is too hard to do so because of what is going on around them?
True, it is very difficult to do with so many outside obstacles in their path, but it's worth a try, isn't it?
Can't we have young men and women dress in a more appropriate way?
I for one am tired of seeing girls in clothes that are so tight and revealing they look like walking advertisements for a porno film. Or the pants young boys wear that are too big. I know that is the fact.
Are these clothes really comfortable? I'm well aware of the great peer pressure that is out there and I know there is much more to contend with like alcohol, pot and other drugs.
I also know there are many young people and parents who are trying to turn the tide and it is not an easy job. But if we can especially get to the young women and once more have them realize they have a great gift to give someone who is truly deserving of it.
Femininity does not mean we can't play sports or be competitive in this so-called "man's world." There's just a soft, caring and loving part of our personality.
No matter what you might have heard, women are the backbone of humanity. They are the procreators of the race, the caregivers, the teachers.

QUICKIE QUIZ: WHICH TELETUBBIE IS THE MOST OFFENSIVE ROLE MODEL?

DIPSY LAA-LAA PO TINKY WINKY BIGOTTY NITWIT

I don't get wined and dined every day But in this case, the cause in Glen Carbon is very good

It isn't every day I'm invited out to wine, dine and dance by gentlemen a few years my junior.
At least, not a married one.
But it happened this morning, and I'm giving the matter serious consideration.
We're not talking champagne, candlelight and violins. Or the Ritz.
Instead, it's spaghetti, gin-and-tonic and swing-rhythm-and-blues at the Glen Carbon American Legion Post.
Melita Walz pretty much has to be there, since the occasion is a fund-raiser for her campaign — and those of Margaret Maggio and Harry Thurnau — for seats on the Glen Carbon Village Board in the coming April election.
All three are members of Concerned Citizens for Glen Carbon, the group who last year gathered more than 1,500 signatures on petitions opposing the issue of $3.3 million in general obligation bonds to finance a plan to revitalize the village's Old Town.

It forced a November special election in which the bond issue was defeated by 69 percent of voters.
The three are blunt about the purpose of their candidacy. They want to rescind the village's tax increment financing district, TIF II. And they figure if all three of them aren't elected that goal will fail.
Melita's husband Mike — the gent who asked me out — tells me that following the bond issue defeat, "everyone was led to believe that the issue was dead in the water."
"But now it appears that Mayor Ron Foster and the board plan to pay for the redevelopment plan out of the village's general fund," he said.
The village has already spent about $1 million on the project to purchase land and pay a consultant. Several property owners have already sold their land to the village voluntarily and a number of structures have been razed.
A condemnation suit involving three plots of land on Main Street — the last three plots designated to be redeveloped — was filed by the village against owner John Hampton. A ruling in the case has not, as of now, been made.

Hampton, who closed a store on the property in 1996 because the village had offered to buy it — a sale that fell through because the parties couldn't agree on a price — was fined for violating building codes by the village when the store began deteriorating.
However, Hampton said, he twice applied for a permit to repair the building and twice was denied.
Now, Mike Walz tells me, the village is seeking a contract agreement with American Legion Post 435 to join the TIF II district with the contract calling for $309,500 to be spent by the post on renovation of the building and land.
The Legion post has been situated in its current metal building about four years and, according to Mike, is struggling to maintain itself without such additional expense. The plans call for a totally brick front over the metal building, new walls around the property, new lighting, a relocation of its parking lot and a turn-of-the-century style outdoor beer garden.

Further, he said, the Legion has been denied a building permit for construction of a privacy wall between the post and a neighboring brick residence agreed upon between the post and the property owner when the Legion's building was constructed.
Unless, of course, such a wall would be part of a TIF agreement.
Meanwhile, I've got to decide on that dinner-date.
I could use some Miller and Dorsey and Goodman right now. If it's OK with Melita, that is.
But, if I'm not free March 6, Mike's also asked me to the victory party on Election Night in April.
I can't lose either way.

List the deceased

I am so happy to see the listing of the deceased back on the front page of the Press-Record. Why can't it be on the Journal also? It comes out twice a week, but the Press-Record's only once a week. A person is buried by the time people receive the news. Listings on the front page of the two-times-a-week Journal is the best thing we could have, next to a daily bulletin board.

Where's the other cannon?

I just am curious and many other people have been also: What happened to our other cannon from World War II? It was down on 24th Street and Madison Avenue in Granite City. When they built the gazebo there, the cannon disappeared.

Agreement over National City dispute may be close

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

An agreement between the city of Madison, Fairmont City and St. Clair County over boundaries in the former National City area is apparently close at hand.

At Tuesday's meeting of the Madison City Council, the council met in executive session to discuss the negotiations.

Afterward, Mayor John Hamm said an agreement was being worked out and would probably be finalized in about a week or so.

He did not disclose what the actual boundaries agreed to would be.

If finalized, the agreement would solidify Madison's southern borders, settle issues over a number of overlapping annexations and resolve a lawsuit filed by the St. Clair County State's Attorney's office.

In the latest round of legal and annexation battles, St. Clair County and municipalities have been fighting over land in the area since incorporated. Earlier annexation battles and lawsuits involved a fight between Madison and Fairmont City over what is now Gateway International Raceway and Gateway Midstate Truck Plaza.

At stake is a large area of land suitable for development around Interstate 55/70 and in an area where a highway spur to a new Mississippi River bridge may be located.

Present land battles include a series of overlapping annexations between Madison and Fairmont City near the intersection of Illinois 203 and I-55/70 and attempts to annex the St. Louis National Stockyards property, the largest chunk of land in National City.

Fairmont City annexed the stockyards in December, but used land tied up in the overlapping annexations to accomplish it.

If a court ruled that the land was in Madison, it would have blocked Fairmont City from expanding toward the stockyards and the Mississippi River.

The suit — which alleges that eight annexations by the city of Madison between Feb. 13, 1996, and June 2, 1998, are illegal because the properties were not contiguous to Madison — was filed by the St. Clair County State's Attorney's office.

Some of the disputed property includes overlapping annexations by Fairmont City.

The suit challenged a series of annexations in St. Clair County by the city over several years. At stake is which municipality — Madison or Fairmont City — would have access to annex major portions of the former village of National City, including the St. Louis National Stockyards.

Officials with Fairmont City and St. Clair County could not be reached for comment on Wednesday.

Twenty-one hours of orientation and training are needed before volunteers are assigned to patient care. The next volunteer training course will be offered in three Saturday sessions, March 6, 13 and 20, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City.

If you're interested in becoming a Hospice volunteer or finding out more about the Hospice program of home care for the terminally ill, call Nancy Kaprelian at 798-3999 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. weekdays by March 1 to arrange an interview and sign up for the orientation.

Former assessment supervisor Barton dies of heart attack

By Paul Mackie
Staff writer

A controversial Madison County supervisor of assessments died at the age of 76.

James W. Barton suffered a heart attack at his home on Monday and later died at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City.

He was the greatest guy there ever was," said one of Barton's four sisters, Geraldine Barnett of Granite City. "It happened so suddenly. He had never been sick."

Barton loved to hunt, was a pilot and also served as a mechanic in Gen. George Patton's 3rd Army during World War II. He was among the first U.S. troops to witness the Nazi concentration camps, Barnett said.

Barton took up residence in Madison County after his time in the service and was appointed supervisor of assessments in 1972. He was not recommended for reappointment by former Madison County Board Chairman Nelson Hagauer in 1989.

After pleading guilty to one count of conspiracy to commit bribery and four counts of official misconduct, Barton spent three months in the county jail in 1987. Prosecutors had said he was involved in the improper lowering of property tax assessments during his terms in office.

But Barnett said her brother had never done anything wrong and was cleared of all crimes by the authorities after serving his time in jail.

"They returned his pension and his back pay," she said.

"He didn't want it in the paper."

Present. Supervisor of Assessments Debra Ming, who worked with Barton from 1972-84, agreed. She said she recalls the ruling on her former supervisor was reversed by the appellate courts.

"He left under a very dark cloud that upset all my Ming said. Mr. Barton was a very pleasant, and in my opinion honest, man. I don't understand the trouble he had."

Upon retirement, Barton began restoring old automobiles. He has a restored 1923 Ford on display in a museum in Highland, Barnett said.

She said he had returned from visiting his uncle in Kentucky the day before his death. He was ready to visit Florida with his wife of 52 years, Julia.

voices and never leave their seats. They were told that distractions could keep the bus driver from concentrating on the road. They were also told that the bus driver isn't a teacher, but someone who has a responsibility to make sure they arrive to and from school safely and on time. The children were given a list of about 12 written procedures, first of which stated that a student would be warned about misbehaving. At the end of the list, the children were told that they would be suspended or would receive detention, depending on the severity of their misbehavior. Noeth said the latter comment brought a few "oohs" and "ahhs" from the kids.

who had remained, telling them that it would not comment on Riebold's transfer. The board then went on to other agenda items. Monica Leon, a parent who addressed the board, said she was dissatisfied with the way the meeting was presented. "This is terrible. This is not the way they said it would be. They have left everyone in the dark," she said. Pam Pool, another parent in support of Riebold, voiced her displeasure. "I think this is absolutely silly and ridiculous," she said.

The most important part of the program, according to Noeth, dealt with the emergency evacuation exercises.

She said that all children who ride the bus, about 200, participated in the mock exercises by exiting the emergency door at the rear of the bus.

She said the exercises benefited the younger children the most because they were more apprehensive to exit the back of the bus than the older children. She added that the exercises were beneficial to everyone because in case of an emergency, they would know exactly what to do and how to do it.

"Hopefully, through the seminar and the emergency drills, the children now understand just how important bus safety is," Noeth said. "This was an excellent learning experience for them."

Clutts added, "Because of programs like this, the children are more well-behaved on the bus and have more respect for the driver."

McFarland, a Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville graduate who now teaches in the Pattonville, Mo., school district, and Don McGrady of Signal Hill, who retired as a music teacher in Edwardsville 41 years ago, directed the full-band rehearsal. Haun said the young musicians had a final band rehearsal, ate their dinner, then changed clothes for the public concert. They then took their places in the two bands, which were set up facing each other on the gym floor. Officials estimated that about 900 parents and friends filled the bleachers to hear the two bands perform. The program included marches, show tunes, classical and even pop music.

"By all means, 'Tempest' was the favorite (of the sixth-graders)," Haun said. "During the day, there were groans when the conductor said, 'Let's practice...' any of the other pieces, until he said 'Tempest'."

"Then they all cheered." The middle school band's favorite was "Symphony of Sirens," a medley of TV themes from the '50s and '60s, long before the students' time, Haun said.

"We were all talking about how much the kids knew these songs, but the parents really enjoyed them," he said.

ents or police about the issue. A secretary at the board office said Doughty was unavailable, and the high school principal's number was disconnected.

A number of parents, school board members and others were at the school Wednesday. Linda Douglas, whose 10th-grade daughter was one of those locked out, said she just wanted to find out what happened.

"I don't know what's going on, that's why I'm up here observing," she said.

Board member Bill Tyler was at the school Wednesday morning, but could get no information.

"I stopped by here on my way to work to talk to the superintendent," Tyler said. "He told me he didn't have time and that he could handle it, that's all I was told."

Several board members and other officials said there have been concerns about Doughty, who was hired last summer. "I know we're having a lot of problems; there are a lot of concerns," board member Metro Pierson said. "I hope that the public would come and see and be involved in the school district. The bottom line is that we have to be about the education of our students."

She agreed that there have been ongoing problems with Doughty. "He's very hard to talk with," she said. "He just won't listen."

Several parents outside the school Wednesday said they planned to attend the board meeting at 7 p.m. today, Thursday, in district office behind the school.

However, only those who submit a written request prior to the board meeting will be allowed to speak.

Haine fights prisoner's release

By Dennis Grubbaugh
Staff writer

The Madison County state's attorney is again fighting the release of a prisoner involved in a fiery crash that killed a Godfrey woman on the Grand River Road in 1977.

But the fight appears to be more an exercise in principle since the inmate appears destined for several more years in the Missouri Department of Corrections.

An Illinois parole hearing for Dennis B. Kirksey, 46, has been set for 9 a.m. April 14 at the Menard Correctional Center in Chester. But State's Attorney Bill Haine is not waiting for the hearing. He sent a letter this month objecting to any parole, one day after receiving notice of the hearing from the state.

Kirksey and another prison escapee, Raymond Milentz, were fleeing Grafton police in a stolen car Dec. 21, 1977, when they slammed into the rear of a vehicle driven by Mary Ann Cress, 28, and a half mile west of Alton. The gas tank exploded, and Cress died while trapped in the burning car.

Kirksey and Milentz had escaped the previous day after overpowering security guards while on their way back to the Missouri State Penitentiary in Jefferson City from a court hearing in St. Louis.

At the time, the men were serving prison sentences for murder. They were eventually also sentenced for kidnapping, related to the incident with the guards, then pleaded guilty to murder in Cress' death. They each received a 20- to 30-year term in Cress' case.

"The court imposed, after a plea bargain, a sentence of 20-30 years to run concurrent with the Missouri sentence of while and two federal sentences," Haine said in his letter to the Illinois Prisoner Review Board. "We cannot believe that any less time served would be just."

An official with the Prisoner Review Board said Kirksey is scheduled for parole in Illinois in April but is not likely to get it because of the life sentence he is serving in Missouri. Still, he will "max out" on the sentence given to him in Illinois in April 2000, the official said.

Kirksey will not be getting out of Crossroads Correctional Center in Cameron, Mo., any time soon, a Missouri DOC spokesman said.

"I don't know if this guy is going to get out ever, John Fougere said. "He was sentenced to life for murder and 45 years for first-degree robbery, to be served consecutively."

Those sentences were imposed in November 1973, he said, Kirksey is next up for parole in Missouri in 2002.

ROBBERY: A white male wearing a blue jean jacket and blue jeans held a knife to the throat of a taxi driver early Tuesday morning demanding money.

According to the Granite City Police Department, about $60 was taken from a cab driver at about 4:09 a.m. The cab driver, who works for the Checker Cab Company, was not injured.

Reports indicated the driver picked up the suspect near 22nd Street and Illinois Avenue. When the driver crossed the railroad tracks at 25th Street and Century, the suspect pulled out the knife. After the money was taken, the suspect told the driver to turn off the ignition, which he did.

The suspect then fled northbound, into a field between Center Street and the railroad, where the driver lost sight of the suspect as he radioed his dispatcher as to what happened.

New East St. Louis junior college pleases students

By Jason White
Staff writer

About 368 students are taking classes at East St. Louis Community College Center, half as many as were enrolled during the final semester of the school's predecessor.

But the students seem to be optimistic about the new school, Assistant Chief Administrator Anthony Neal said.

"Students seem to be pleased that the college is running," said Neal, a former Metropolitan Community College employee. "This is going to be a great opportunity."

Ivan Lach, a retired Illinois Community College Board official who is now a consultant, said 245 former MCC students are enrolled at Belleville Area College. Former MCC students may enroll at BAC for the same tuition charged to BAC district residents.

"All in all, I think it's off to a pretty good start," Lach said.

The school is run by the Southern Illinois Collegiate Common Market, a non-profit consortium of six colleges. Educational programs are offered by BAC, Kaskaskia College and Lake Land College.

Academic programs include transfer courses for the first two years of a bachelor's degree, addiction counseling, certified nursing assistant, child care instruction and adult education such as Graduation Equivalency Diploma (GED) classes.

The ICCB has had little time to market the new school, Lach said.

"We expected the enrollment to be down," he said.

Efforts are already under way to organize the summer semester and the upcoming fall semester, he said.

The staff is significantly smaller.

Crouch files suit over ruling

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

A lawsuit seeking to have Pontoon Beach mayoral candidate Jim Denham thrown off the April 13 ballot has been filed by Police Chief Michael Crouch.

The suit was filed Monday at the Madison County Court-house in Edwardsville. Crouch's suit claims that the village's Electoral Board ignored technical violations in Denham's petitions and allowed Village Clerk Mary Rowden to remain on the Electoral Board to consider the matter.

Earlier this month, the village's Electoral Board voted 2-1 to allow Denham to remain on the ballot.

Crouch wanted Rowden removed from the board, claiming she had a conflict of

"Ms. Rowden should have been removed."

Michael Crouch

interest.

"Ms. Rowden should have been removed from the Village Electoral Board in order for the board to proceed with a fair and impartial hearing," the suit states. "The board, with Ms. Rowden as the deciding vote, ruled to allow Ms. Rowden to remain..."

Crouch also said Denham failed to number his petitions and Denham filled out an "independent" statement of candidacy, but his petitions listed his party affiliation as the "New Beginnings Party."

He also argued that because Rowden took election papers home in violation of a village ordinance, there was a serious question of tampering and Denham should be thrown off.

At the Electoral Board hearing, Rowden said she took the documents home to prevent tampering, citing a "less than harmonious" relationship with Crouch and the police department.

At the Electoral Board hearing, all the issues were settled by a 2-1 vote, with Rowden and Trustee and Electoral Board Chairman Irene Karlechuk on one side and Trustee Bob Abel on the other.

The case will be heard by Associate Judge James Hackett.

Robinson convicted in murder

By Dennis Grubaugh
Staff writer

Dennis Robinson was found guilty Monday of the 1997 strangulation murder of a woman whose body he dumped along Interstate 270.

A jury of five women and seven men took less than two hours to return the verdict, read by Circuit Judge Charles V. Romani Jr.

Robinson, 32, of St. Louis, hung his head, but otherwise showed little emotion. As he left the courtroom, he proclaimed his innocence to a reporter.

"I didn't kill nobody," Robinson said. "The people had me convicted before it began."

Robinson faces between 20 and 60 years in prison or up to natural life if the judge deems it a particularly "brutal and heinous" crime. He did not testify in his own behalf.

Robinson was accused of picking up Susan Keen, 37, at a St. Louis area bar on Jan. 16, 1997, taking her to the home of his sister for dinner, then leaving with her. He claimed the last time he saw her was when he dropped her off at a Schnucks store for cigarettes.

Her body was found hours later along Interstate 270, between the Chain of Rocks Canal and Mississippi River bridge. Her clothes were in disarray, and she had suffered numerous defensive injuries, the result of fighting off her attacker.

Keen's mother, Othea Sprinkle of St. Louis County, was among family members in the courtroom.

"The coincidence (with the glove found in connection with the Susan Keen murder), I assure you ladies and gentlemen, is more than 1-in-18 billion."

Keith Jensen
Madison County prosecutor

attendance during the trial. "I'm relieved that it's over and that we got the right verdict," she said. "And I have three children who will also be relieved."

Keen's three children — ages 8, 11 and 13 — live with Sprinkle. Keen was divorced.

Assistant State's Attorney Keith Jensen said there was virtually no chance that the killer was anyone other than Robinson.

Expert testimony regarding DNA put the chances at 1-in-18 billion that semen stains found on Keen's clothes could have been left by anybody else; and a 1-in-500 million chance that blood found on Robinson's shirt could have been left by anybody other than the victim.

Further adding fuel, Jensen said, was a work glove found under Keen's head. It matched a type of glove that Robinson wore on his job at Hussman Corp. in St. Louis.

The coincidence (with the glove), I assure you ladies and gentlemen, is more than 1-in-18 billion," Jensen told the jury in his closing argument.

Robinson's defense attorney, Tyler Bateman, faulted work done by Illinois State Police. He said police built their case around a preconceived notion that Robinson was the culprit, never bothering to seek evidence that might have exonerated him.

"They did sloppy work," he told the jury.

Among other things, police did not bother to analyze carpet and upholstery samples taken from Robinson's car, scrapings taken from under Keen's fingernails, and cell samples from inside the work glove found at the scene.

Police also did not tape-record Robinson's statements, given voluntarily shortly after the killing.

Robinson claimed to have last seen Keen after he dropped her off at a Schnucks store in Bellefontaine Neighbors, Mo. However, Keen was not among shoppers shown entering the store on a surveillance videotape used by prosecutors.

Bateman said Keen may not have entered the store. She might have run into the person who actually killed her after she saw Robinson drive from the scene.

Bateman maintained that Robinson and Keen had consensual sex, even though Robinson denied to police that he had ever had sex with the woman.

"Just because he lied about sex doesn't make him the murderer," Bateman said.

The bloodstain on Robinson's shirt could have been a smear left by Keen, who may have fallen or otherwise injured herself in her intoxicated state that night, Bateman said.

State's Attorney Bill Haine praised the work of prosecutors Jensen and Calvin Fuller, as well as the police efforts, which included work by the Missouri Highway Patrol.

Edwardsville man charged in thefts

By Steve Whitworth
Staff writer

A 22-year-old man was charged Monday with burglarizing three apartments in his Edwardsville complex by crawling through the attic and entering through their ceilings.

Clay Nelson, 22, of the first block of South Cherry Hills, was charged in Madison County Circuit Court with three counts of residential burglary and one of felony theft. Nelson was held at the County Jail in lieu of $50,000 bail on each of the burglary counts and $25,000 on the theft charge.

Nelson was arrested Saturday following a series of burglaries at his apartment complex last week. Nelson shared one of the apartments with his mother.

The charges accused him of burglarizing one of the apartments on Feb. 14, another on Feb. 16 and a third on Feb. 18.

"He had accessed the attic area of the building through the attic panel in his bedroom closet," said Sgt. Scott Evers, chief investigator for the Edwardsville Police Department.

Once he got into the attic, Nelson cut through the walls to reach the attic areas over the other apartments, Evers said.

"He dropped down into the apartments through the access panels to the attic," the detective said.

After the other burglaries, the victims compared notes and began to suspect someone in the building was involved, Evers said. Police searched the building and found "trails and holes" in the attic.

McFall directs Collinsville to stunning success in first season with girls team

Steve McFall said he wanted one more shot of being a head basketball coach. He did not think that opportunity would present itself with a girls team.

But that's the way it has turned out for McFall, who is in his first year at the helm of the girls program at Collinsville High School. Previously, he coached men's basketball at McKendree College and boys basketball at Dupu and Collinsville high schools.

McFall, the head baseball coach at Collinsville, was head coach at Dupu in two different stints and most recently assisted Bob Bone with the Collinsville boys.

"I really wasn't looking for the job," McFall said.

McFall had no idea of what he was getting into. The results have been great, however, as he has his Lady Kahoks within two victories — albeit two tough hurdles — of going to the IHSA Class AA state tournament.

Collinsville will play Salem tonight to decide the Taylorville Sectional. A victory tonight would move the Lady Kahoks into the Salem Supersectional Monday night against either East St. Louis or Mount Vernon.

Regardless of what Collinsville does tonight, it has been a memorable season for the program. The Lady Kahoks won their fourth regional title and set a school victory record with a 22-7 mark going into tonight's game against Salem.

"The start of a tradition?"

"Let's hope so," said McFall, who is optimistic about the future.

"We lose only Autumn Dow from this year's team out of our top six or seven players, and the freshman group looks good."

Collinsville has had few peers in the state when it comes to a boys basketball tradition. The Kahoks have won two state titles, and have finished second (once), third (twice) and fourth (once) in other state appearances. They have won nine supersectionals, 23 sectionals and 37 regionals.

The boys tradition has yet to transfer to the girls side, although McFall said he has used the boys tradition as a motivator for the girls.

"A lot of people knew I came from the boys team (as the junior varsity coach)," McFall said. "I use that tradition to help motivate the girls. And everytime you walk into Fletcher Gymnasium, you can't help but feel the presence of the tradition."

"In fact, prior to our regional championship victory over Charleston, a reporter from that area asked me about the Collinsville basketball tradition."

The Kahoks didn't impress anyone from the start. They were 8-6 at one point before winning 14 of their last 15 games. The addition of 6-foot-4 Amy Loftus, who came back from an injury after the holiday break, has set the team on a roll.

"Amy gives us that big presence to offset (6-3) Autumn Dow on the other side," McFall said. "She also gives us needed depth."

McFall, 52, said he's not sure how much longer he will continue to coach. He said he may retire from teaching at Dupu in three years but he may continue coaching.

"As long as I enjoy it, I'll continue to coach," he said.

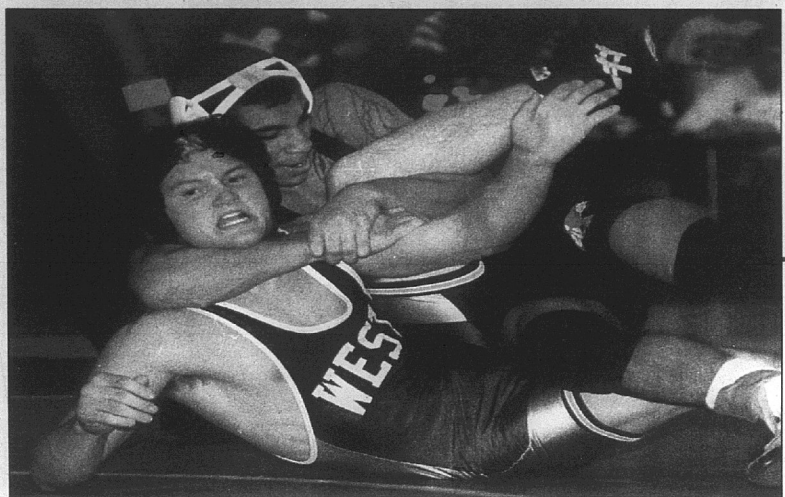

McFall has built the Collinsville baseball program into one of the better ones in Metro East over the last decade.

Asked to compare this season with others he has had coaching boys, McFall said that was difficult. He said, though, this season "is different."

"I was at a point in my career that I knew I wanted to be a head basketball coach again," he said.

"It's funny that I wound up as the girls coach. I've had other job offers to coach in basketball and baseball, but it's nice to stay in Collinsville."

Granite City tops Murphysboro and Chatham-Glenwood to win sectional

By Rick Broome

After winning just one medal with its five entries at the IHSA Class AA individual state tournament this past weekend, the Granite City wrestling team dusted itself off and earned a trip to this Saturday's dual-meet team state tournament.

PREP WRESTLING

The Warriors posted six pins en route to trouncing Murphysboro 45-24 in the sectional semifinals and handed Chatham-Glenwood its first loss of the season in the sectional final.

The Warriors earned the state berth with a 34-21 win against Chatham-Glenwood.

They will wrestle DeKalb 11 a.m. Saturday in the IHSA Class AA state quarterfinal round. The tournament, at Augustana College's Carver Center in Rock Island, continues with semifinals at 2 p.m., the third-place match at 6 p.m. and the championship at 6 p.m.

"We told them that their character was going to be tested," Granite City coach Mike Garland said. "A lot of them (as individuals) had had sectionals and some of them had had

SIUE armed for solid campaign

By Bill Hester

A strong pitching staff can carry a baseball team a long way. Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville coach Gary "Bo" Collins hopes that will be the case for his team this spring in NCAA Division II competition.

COLLEGE BASEBALL

Collins was optimistic as the Cougars traveled to Huntsville, Ala., for the scheduled start of the season last weekend.

He is not the only one optimistic about SIUE. Collegiate Baseball tabbed the Cougars for No. 5 in its preseason poll.

"You can't be good without pitching and we have both quality and depth in our pitching this season," Collins said.

SIUE had a pitching staff about four or five deep last year but Collins

Cougars have experience and depth in pitching staff believes he has at least eight capable pitchers this season.

"Over the course of the season, that is a big difference," Collins said.

"Our team will be a little different this season. We had a lot of power last season and averaged about 3½ runs a game. I'd be happy with about 6½ this season but we should cut down on the runs allowed."

"Our team ERA last season was about five and I wouldn't be surprised if it was around three this season."

The Cougars will be led by returning seniors Ryan Cox (Stewardson-Strasburg High School) and Aaron Rakers (Trenton/Kaskaskia CC).

They combined for 15 victories last season.

Cox was drafted by the Detroit Tigers but elected not to sign. Collins believes that Rakers was the team's best pitcher at the end of the season and he again should be drafted this season.

"These guys have something to prove, and I'm expecting big years from them," Collins said.

Another returning senior pitcher is Jason Guest (Nashville). He likely will be the team's closer out of the bullpen.

He is just four saves behind SIUE career saves leader Pete Deikus, who had 19 saves from 1984-87.

The pitching depth has been improved by some experienced senior transfer students. Brian Matzenbacher (Marissa) comes to SIUE after playing at Creighton University while Corey Blackwell (New Athens) arrives after stints at Belleville Area College and the University of Arkansas-Little Rock.

Other pitching candidates include: Jared Wood (Cairo, Mo./Meramec CC); Dan Sergott (O'Fallon); Pete Kleeman (East Alton/Lewis & Clark); Matt Maltagliati (Oakville/Jefferson CC); Chris Kiefer (Scott Air Force Base/Baker University); Ryan Cross (Lincoln/Millikin University) and Ryan Edwards (St. Peters/Meramec CC).

The Cougars will not have a lot of experienced players in the field, although they have experience and depth behind the plate. Senior Ryan

Alton unleashes attack in OT against Warriors

Granite City closes with 12-15 overall, 10 straight games in conference play

By Rick Broome
Staff writer

The last time Granite City and Alton hooked up, the Redbirds put on an impressive performance.

Tuesday night, the Redbirds were kept from that overtime when they pulled away from the Warriors to steal a 79-70 Southwestern Conference victory.

On the Warriors' first possession, Chris Tindall opened with a ball-fake and drove to the basket to dunk over Alton center Demarco Snipes. It looked like the Warriors were off to the races.

Granite City led 29-20 with 2 minutes 30 seconds remaining in the second quarter and 32-27 at the half.

The Warriors charged to a 37-27 lead and Kevin Elliott's hesitation on a jumper drew Snipes' fourth foul one minute into the third quarter.

But the Redbirds came charging back with an 18-2 scoring spree. Charles Banks' three-point play gave Alton a 42-39 edge and Lee Heard's 3-point shot made it 45-39.

Elliott was slapped with a technical foul with 1:38 to play in the third and the Redbirds hit one of two from the line to go ahead 49-41.

"In the third quarter, they started making some shots that they hadn't been taking," Granite City coach John VanBuskirk said. "They had been working it inside real hard and then their kids got a little confident shooting outside. We were concentrating real hard on stopping them inside and they kicked it out and we weren't "They made baskets and they deserved to win. They made baskets and we didn't, and that was that."

really ready for that."

The Warriors clawed back into the game down the stretch. Freshman Teddy Wallace's two free throws and Tindall's mid-range jumper tied the score at 59-59 with four minutes to play.

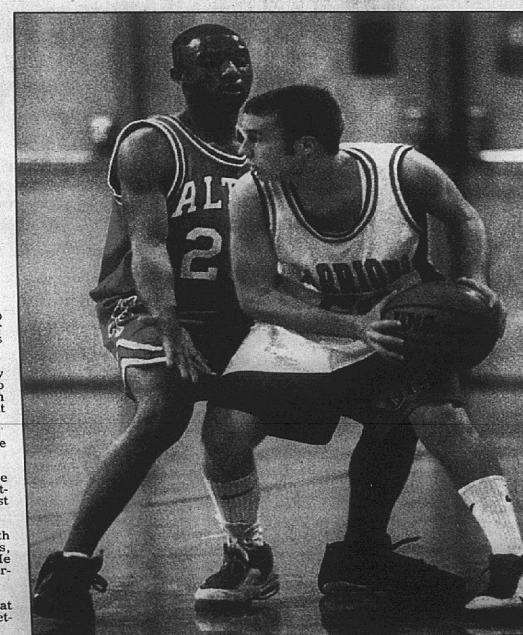

Snipes hit two free throws and a layup to give Alton a 63-59 lead, but sophomore Jonathan Franko, in for Elliott, hit a 3-pointer from deep in the corner. On the same play, Granite City's Matt Pistorius, who had a game-high 19 points, was fouled inside. He hit the first of two free throws to tie the score at 63.

Alton held the ball for the last two minutes of regulation, looking for the final shot, but Jovan Smith's last-second runner clanked off the iron, setting up the overtime.

The Redbirds dominated the extra session, hitting all six of their free throws and outscoring the Warriors 16-7.

"We lost our focus," said Warriors senior Mike Simpson, who had 8 points. "We always do that. Whenever another team goes up we kind of go crazy a little bit and lose control of what we are doing. I just always knew that no matter what our lead was, there was still a lot of game ahead of us because that's what we have done the last three games. We've gotten up and then lost it from there, so I just tried to play the whole game hard. I gave it my all and I know everybody else did."

Heard had 17 to lead Alton. Jovan Smith had 12 and Banks and Patrick Mays each accounted for 10.

Tindall added 16 points to Pistorius' 19 for the Warriors, who had to play without junior starting guard Zack May.

"Zack has had a hurt foot since the Belleville West game (Feb. 12)," VanBuskirk said. "This would have been his third game in five days. The doctor gave him the OK to play, but it's something that has gotten better with rest. They are a very aggressive team and he would have had to work extremely hard tonight cutting and bringing the ball up the floor. We just thought it was in the team's best interest not to hurt him any more than he is. We think he can be 100 percent next Tuesday (for the IHSAA Class AA regional opener against Belleville Althoff), so that was our reasoning. Believe me, he wanted to play, but it wasn't his decision, it was my decision. It was hard to keep him out."

Granite City's sixth man, Wallace, played admirably in May's absence.

"Teddy did a great job," VanBuskirk said. "They all did a great job. That's how we've been playing. We've been coming out on the short end just like that the last 10 games."

Franko gave the Warriors a big boost off the bench. He scored 8 points, including the key 3-pointer.

"Jonathan did a nice job," VanBuskirk said. "He is a good basketball player. He's just a sophomore and experience will help. This doesn't surprise us that he was capable of doing that. He's going to be a good high school basketball player."

"Teddy and Jonathan stepped up," Simpson said. "They were really mature about it, and they played like they have been stepping in all year. They just acted like one of us. They did a great job."

Granite City has lost nine straight games and finished conference play with 10 straight losses. They finished the regular season 12-15 overall and 2-10 in the SWC.

"(Alton) made baskets that won the game," VanBuskirk said. "They made baskets and they deserved to win. They made baskets and we didn't, and that was that."

"I don't think it was as up-and-down as Alton wanted it to be. I thought we controlled the tempo pretty much. We've played games just like that the last few games and I can't ask the kids to do more than that. They did everything possible to win and the other team just made the shots."

The Warriors next play on Tuesday night at home in the IHSAA Class AA regional playoffs against Belleville Althoff.

The Southwestern Conference championship will be decided Friday night when Edwardsville (8-3 in league play) faces Alton and East St. Louis (8-3) hosts Belleville East (7-4).

state tournaments. It's their senior year and you need something to leave behind besides sour grapes. I didn't even huddle with them. I got all the captains together and the seniors and said this is your team, take them down stairs and huddle with them, say the Lord's Prayer, come back up and we'll see what you are made of. They really responded well."

Granite City spotted Murphysboro a 3-0 lead before freshman Jim Treake won a decision at 145 pounds and a trio of Warriors — Ryan Worthen (145 pounds), Brooks Narvaez (152 pounds) and George Kirgan (160 pounds) — won consecutive matches by pin. Bobby Grammer (189 pounds), Kevin Venne (215 pounds) and freshman Jacob Janek (275 pounds) followed suit to set the Warriors on the road to advancement.

With the victory clinched, Garland rested Steve Peach, Jake Triant, Tom Tedesco, Paul Johnson and Ben Lofink for the final. "I wanted to save their energy and their conditioning for the next match," Garland said. "That really made a difference I think because some of the guys had a little extra energy, a little extra boost, giving it all they had for six minutes rather than 12 minutes."

Chatham Glenwood came into the championship at 17-0, including 42-18 semi-final victory against Belleville West. But two of the Warriors who had their individual hopes dashed came back to help the team advance. Johnson, a 125-pound senior, won by pin in 38 seconds. Venne nailed his foe to the mat at 1:24. Johnson had failed to get to the state meet after winning a regional title while state qualifier Venne, a medalist in 1997, was beaten in his only match at state.

"I was really happy with the way the seniors and really the whole team responded," Garland said. "Against Chatham, we got three pins and a major decision. All they got was a technical fall and a major decision. That's how we beat them last year. Last year we only beat them six out of 14 matches, but we pinned them five and tech-failed them in the other one. It's just a matter of putting them on their back and us staying off of ours."

Collins (Roxana/BAC) caught about half of the games last season. He will be filled by senior (Mehlville, Mo./Meramec CC) who hit .366 last season as a starter in the outfield, also will see time behind the plate. Sophomore Mark Bugger (Edwardsville) is the only other returning starter in the field. He started all 53 games last season, batting .387. He is being moved from second base to third base this season. The other infield spots probably will be filled by senior Brody Arvire (Wood River/Lewis & Clark) at first base, freshman Chad Opel (Edwardsville) at second base and junior Jeremiah Berheger (Waterloo/BAC) at shortstop. The starting outfield will likely include Travis Dawson (Collinsville/BAC and Austin Peay), Brock Fries (Strasburg/Olney) and Dave Crouthers (Edwardsville). Crouthers and Opel were on last year's championship team for Edwardsville — the high school team that went 40-0 and won the IHSAA Class AA championship and the American Legion national championship team. Opel was the national player of the year in American Legion.

"We have more speed this season and we have lot of versatility," Collins said. "We have several guys who can play different positions."

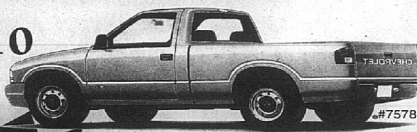

Gary Collins' SIUE baseball team opened the season ranked fifth in NCAA Division II by one publication.

On the far left, Valentine's Day saw the crowning of the care center's King and Queen of Hearts, Dorothy Ray, left, and Earl Hart. The two were selected during a voting period held for several weeks prior to the Valentine's Day party. The two are new members of the Colonial Care family. At left, center residents James and Mildred Talley observed their 67th wedding anniversary with a candlelight lunch for two in a private room. The couple were also given an anniversary cake and celebrated with a visit from their granddaughter.

Glen Carbon must cough up $116K for quick shop

By Dennis Grubaugh
Staff writer

Glen Carbon must pay $116,900 for a condemned Main Street convenience store that it wants removed to encourage other development, a judge has ruled.

But the owner of the property thinks the figure is far less than the village's interest in redefining the area known as Old Town.

Associate Judge Dan Stack set the dollar figure in a ruling handed down late Friday as part of a yearlong court battle involving the village and the owner of the former Hamp's Quick Way. The dollar figure includes the store, a parking lot and an adjacent vacant lot at 134 S. Main St., which the village is trying to acquire through eminent domain.

The village filed an eminent domain lawsuit against property owner John R. Hampton in January 1998. In a court hearing last month, Village Attorney Gary Peel argued that the property price should be closer to the village's appraised value of $90,800.

A separate appraisal sought by Hampton put the figure at $116,900. However, in court Hampton said the property is worth between $200,000 and $250,000.

Hampton's attorney Brian Ransom had said that a "fair price" would be between $150,000 and $200,000.

"My client's reaction is that this (dollar figure) is much lower than he had either hoped or anticipated or believed the property was fairly worth," Ransom said. "Me personally, I thought the judge did as good a job and as honest and as equitable as he could deciding the matter."

Stack noted that the value of the property might have been more had Hampton chosen to keep the store open and make necessary repairs. Hampton closed it in 1996 when he first learned of the village's intent to purchase the property, Stack noted.

The way in which the village has proceeded with the overhaul of Main Street, and the way in which it has affected his client, drew criticism from Ransom on Monday.

"The village was already hip-deep into this fiasco plan of theirs," he said. "But these village fathers know best. Even though the residents have clearly spoken, they must think the rest of the people are village idiots."

Residents in November rejected by an overwhelming margin a proposal to issue $3.3 million in general obligation bonds to finance development of Old Town. Hampton's Main Street property is one of several that the village has either purchased or plans to purchase to make room for new businesses.

Among the properties bought so far are a radiator shop and a tavern, but so far the only thing to show for them is vacant lots, Ransom said.

"Sprucing up the village ... is a wonderful idea," he said. "But taking a radiator shop for $200,000 and then bulldozing it; then a tavern that had been there 100 years or more, then bulldozing it. Whoever came up with this idea should have their head examined. A $3 million bond issue for an entertainment mecca in Glen Carbon? Please."

Most of Glen Carbon's redevelopment plan has been put on hold while a citizens advisory committee comes up with recommendations. Village Attorney Gary Peel said, And nothing is firm on the Hamp's sale, he said.

I-255 / U.S. 67 extension project gets IDOT's support

By Linda N. Weller
Staff writer

The state's secretary of transportation pledged his support for the extension of U.S. 67 and Illinois Route 255 Friday, but stopped short of specifying how the roadwork would be funded.

"We are going to see what we can do to free up extra federal dollars, and we are going to have to increase our (state) revenues," Kirk Brown said. "The federal government has done its job, and we need money to keep our roads up."

Brown said he has backed down on his support for increasing state gasoline taxes to pay for roadwork because it is contrary to Gov. George Ryan's stance. Another limited option could be to increase license plate fees.

Brown addressed a combined meeting of the Corridor 67 and Completion of I-255 (Alton Bypass) committees at the Alton Holiday Inn.

After his speech, Brown said Ryan has formed an informational task force that is studying how road money is being used and how more money could be generated to maintain existing roads and to build new ones.

The group also is looking at whether administrative costs could be cut.

Representatives from both committees stressed the importance of their common, now combined, goal — to get funding for the extension of Illinois Route 255 northwest from Wood River to Godfrey and for the connecting U.S. 67 corridor to be completed.

The U.S. 67 corridor will run north from Godfrey through Carrollton, Jacksonville, Macomb and Monmouth to Moline and Rock Island.

The improved highway system is essential to promote economic and residential growth in the region and to put Illinois in good position to compete with its western neighbors, officials said.

"Transportation is the cornerstone of the economy," Brown said.

U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Belleville, also promised his continuing support of the roads projects.

"If we are going to create and retain jobs for economic opportunities, we must improve our highway system," Costello is on the U.S. House Transportation Committee.

Rep. John Shimkus, R-Collinsville, sent a representative to the meeting.

Tom Long, chairman of the I-255 executive committee, said extending the road from Wood River through Bethalto and Alton to Godfrey would mean an economic boon to the entire area.

Last fall, one leg of the 255 extension opened from Interstate 270 to Illinois Route 143 in the Alton Bypass.

"We've all seen the benefits of extending 255 through Wood River as we drive to Fairview Heights," Long said. "It is certainly a safer trip, and it takes less time. Our goal is to have that extended further."

Long promised the committee will push hard for funding for the Alton Bypass.

"We will be persistent. We will be pesky and we will not take 'no' for an answer."

Because 255 north of Interstate 270 does not connect with an interstate, the extension to Wood River and its continuation is not part of the system.

THE LAW AND YOU

By RICK REED

Attorney At Law

Recently a man (the plaintiff) was involved in an automobile accident, and he sustained serious injuries. The other driver (the defendant) in this case was totally at fault in that he rear-ended the plaintiff. The defendant driver was ticketed for failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident, and he pled guilty when the case went to court.

The injuries sustained by the plaintiff included a broken leg, a broken wrist, and neck and back injuries. Surgery was required on the leg, and the plaintiff also received extensive physical therapy for the neck and back problems.

The total medical bills in this case were in excess of $16,000. The defendant driver had liability limits on his insurance policy in the amount of $20,000. The plaintiff filed suit against the defendant, and approximately one year later the insurance company for the defendant offered the entire $20,000 in settlement of the case. The plaintiff's question in this matter was whether he should proceed to trial and possibly get a judgment in excess of $20,000 or whether he should accept the settlement offer for the policy limits.

Generally speaking, the chances of the plaintiff collecting money in excess of the policy limits in a case of this nature are very remote. If the plaintiff in this case, for instance, received a verdict from a jury in the amount of $50,000, he could pursue the defendant for the extra $30,000 beyond the policy limits. However, what are the chances of collecting from a defendant driver beyond his insurance limits? Most individuals do not have substantial personal assets beyond insurance limits, and furthermore many defendants would file bankruptcy even if a substantial judgment were obtained.

In some cases, the plaintiff has a feature under his own policy known as underinsured motorist coverage whereby he can pursue his own insurance for amounts in excess of the defendant's limits. In the case at hand, however, the plaintiff's insurance limits were the same as the defendant's. Therefore, there was no excess coverage, and it was the recommendation of the attorney that the plaintiff accept the policy limits offer and settle the case.

HIV/AIDS deaths drop significantly in region

Medical advancements in treating people infected with HIV or AIDS has caused related deaths to drop significantly in Madison and St. Clair counties, state health officials said recently.

The most recent comprehensive data from the Illinois Department of Public Health compares 1997 figures to 1996 and shows a 52 percent decline in AIDS-related deaths during that period.

In Madison County, AIDS deaths decreased from nine in 1996 to three in 1997. Similarly, deaths in St. Clair County dropped from 18 to 11. Monroe County posted no AIDS-related deaths either year.

"The decline signals that medical advancements made in the past couple years are having a dramatic impact in helping those with HIV and AIDS live longer," said Dr. John R. Lumpkin, state public health director.

Lumpkin said the decline is cause for optimism but warned against complacency in the battle against AIDS.

"While it is indeed encouraging that the use of potent drug combinations has revolutionized AIDS care and saved lives, the fight against AIDS still must be won by preventing HIV infection in the first place," he said.

There were 569 HIV/AIDS deaths in the state in 1997, down from the 1,186 deaths reported in 1996. The number of HIV/AIDS deaths was the lowest annual total since 500 were recorded in 1988.

Deaths from AIDS peaked in 1995 when 1,494 were reported, then decreased for the first time in 1996. The drop accelerated in 1997. Figures for 1998 will not be available until the fall of this year.

About 22,000 persons from Illinois have been diagnosed with AIDS since the disease was first identified in 1981 and 64 percent of them have died. An estimated 28,000 to 38,000 others may be infected and living with HIV, the virus that causes AIDS.

"No one should mistake this positive news as an end of the HIV/AIDS epidemic that has taken the lives of nearly 14,000 Illinoisans," Lumpkin said. "The best way to curb this disease is to prevent it from happening in the first place. People must use their knowledge of how this disease is spread to protect themselves from infection."

"They should refrain from sexual activity that can place them at risk; practice safer sex, such as consistently and correctly using a latex condom; and avoid the use of illegal drugs."

HIV deaths fell among both males and females, but men saw the biggest decline. Deaths among men fell 55 percent, from 1,006 in 1996 to 453 in 1997, while deaths among women declined 38 percent from 180 in 1996 to 116 in 1997.

Along racial lines, the drop in deaths was most prominent among white males, down 62 percent from 482 in 1996 to 181 in 1997, compared with a 47 percent drop among black males from 513 in 1996 to 271 in 1997.

Deaths among white females fell 61 percent from 68 in 1996 to 26 in 1997, while deaths among black females decreased 23 percent from 114 in 1996 to 88 in 1997. HIV infection was the 17th-leading cause of death in Illinois, compared with 11th in 1996.

Great Rivers panel approves board, approves bylaws

By Sue Hurley
Staff writer

The meeting of the Great Rivers Scenic Byway Council broke new ground Feb. 18 when it voted in a new board, approved a set of bylaws and began looking ahead.

The count was unanimous when the original 10-member council, appointed by the Illinois Department of Transportation in June 1997, voted itself out of existence in favor of a new 16-member group that more accurately represents the many communities along the 50-mile byway.

The Federal Highway Administration designated the route one of 53 across the United States — a national scenic byway last June. The byway begins at the Melvin Price Lock and Dam and follows the Great River Road (Illinois Route 100) past Pere Marquette State Park to the Eldred Blacktop Road then west on Illinois Route 108 into Kampsville.

New membership includes three representatives each from Jersey, Madison and Greene counties and one each from Godfrey, Alton, Elsah, Grafton, Eldred and Kampsville.

After the new group became official, a slate of officers was chosen that includes Godfrey Mayor Mike Campion as chairman; Grafton Mayor Bobbie Amburg as vice chairman; Bruce Hyde, chairman of the Illinois Valley Cultural Heritage Association, as treasurer; and Greene County appointee Eric Ivers as secretary.

Elsah Mayor Jane Pfeifer, who played host to the meeting, said it was an eventful night in a historic building.

"This is the first night of the new council," Pfeifer told the gathering at the village's Farley Music Hall, which recently underwent restoration. "I hope there will be opportunities to see other town halls to share in the important purpose of the byway."

The new board also accepted three proposals for enhancement projects along the corridor that included a 10-acre land acquisition in Godfrey, a plan to transform the partially restored James Eldred house in rural Greene County into a visitors center and a streetscape improvement plan for a five-block area in Alton.

"The enhancement program's funding comes from the motor fuel tax from the state," said Wayne Freeman, former acting chair who will remain as a Madison County appointee. "Currently, there are $29 million available for the state of Illinois for the next six years."

Copies of all the proposals, which will be sent to IDOT officials in Springfield for their consideration, will be made available at Hayner Public Library in Alton and at the Calhoun Community Library in Hardin.

After the meeting, Campion said he was surprised yet excited about being the new chairman.

"It's a really great opportunity for the River Bend region to be able to showcase something to the rest of the country. I'm excited about what this designation means. It'll take me some time to catch up with where (the original board members) are, but this is a beautiful area, and it's an exciting time. We'll have a lot of chances for all of these communities to work together for the good of everyone."

The new members of the Meeting of the Great Rivers Scenic Byway Council are: Wayne Freeman, Annie Hoagland and Doug Arnold, representing Madison County; Eric Ivers, Don Roberts and B.J. Schild, from Greene County; Dolores Hoffman, Carla Finkes and John Pero, from Jersey County; Mike Campion of Godfrey; Bobbie Amburg of Grafton; Phil Roggio of Alton; Terry Hausmann of Kampsville; Jerry Tacz of Elsah; and Bruce Hyde of Eldred.

The council will hold its next meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday, March 18, in the Godfrey Village Hall.

Easter Egg Hunt

Next earthquake sparks argument

By Mary Shapiro
Staff writer

End of the century fever is nothing new.

Just as in 1899, some prognosticators are looking south to the New Madrid fault line, saying the area is overdue for the release of "Earthquake, the Sequel."

There is a 50-50 chance for an earthquake of magnitude 6 or greater on the Richter scale by next year, some scientists say. And, they add, there's a 90 percent chance by the year 2040.

But the fuss has left Brian Mitchell, a professor of natural sciences and a seismologist who works with Saint Louis University's Earthquake Center, unmoved.

He insists if the window panes rattle and the china falls in your house over the next year, it's more likely the fault of a toddler than tectonics.

"Geological experts have no consensus," they argue constantly over when the next big earthquake will hit in the New Madrid seismic zone," Mitchell said.

"Some scientists are inferring, from evidence of large earthquakes long ago, that the return time for a magnitude 8 — or catastrophic — earthquake could be as short as 250 to 400 years or as long as 10,000 years," he said. "I tend to be a 'long-timer,' so my estimate would be around 1,000 years."

The New Madrid zone is a series of faults running from northeast Arkansas through southeast Missouri, western Tennessee, western Kentucky and southern Illinois.

It's been home to some of the most violent earthquakes in North America. Between 1811 and 1812, four catastrophic earthquakes — with magnitude estimates of more than 7 — occurred over three months and affected more than 1 million square miles. Towns in three states disappeared, islands in the Mississippi River vanished and the river even flowed backward for a while.

"But there weren't many buildings or people here to be harmed at the time," Mitchell said. "Many of the people who died back then drowned after their boats on the rivers capsized."

Slightly less-terrible tremors followed in January 1843 and October 1868.

Since seismic-monitoring instruments were installed around the fault zone in 1974, more than 4,000 earthquakes have been registered, but the vast majority were too slight to be felt.

"I don't think it's very likely we'll see a big quake in our lifetime — or a lot of lifetimes," Mitchell said.

"And the question is, how much damage it would really do in St. Louis, which is hundreds of miles from the fault," he said. "The 6.2 magnitude quake in 1895 only damaged some poorly constructed buildings here."

Earthquake energy spreads in a circle from the epicenter — sort of like the ripples in a lake after a rock is thrown in.

"The energy in that expanding circle gets less and less as the circle goes out," Mitchell said.

Many locals remember an earthquake in 1968 — the epicenter was in southern Illinois, he said.

"That was about a 5.4 magnitude, which did crack some chimneys here," Mitchell said. Some studies have suggested the potential for damage is greatest in river valleys.

"The ground motion (in river valleys) would be significantly greater, because the soft sediment would shift more," Mitchell said.

"But a lot of St. Louis and St. Louis County are very stable because of the limestone just under the ground surface," he said.

Also, the city is fortunate to be perched in the middle of a tectonic plate — a constantly moving section of Earth.

Watch out, bad guys

State Rep. Steve Davis, R-Bethalto, and Madison County State's Attorney Bill Haine testify before the House Judiciary Committee in favor of a bill cracking down on violent offenders recently. The bill passed out of committee unanimously.

Earthquake preparation should be must for all

By Mary Shapiro
Staff writer

He generated the news story of 1990, keeping this part of the Midwest all shook up with rumors an earthquake along the New Madrid fault was possible in early December that year.

Iben Browning, whose prediction fizzled out, was a biologist, inventor and climatologist in New Mexico. He also worked as a consultant, offering long-range climate and geology forecasts to various businesses.

Browning died in 1991 following a heart attack.

He hit the headlines with his theory that simultaneous peaks in lunar and tidal cycles led to a 50-50 chance for a New Madrid quake. It originally was published in his newsletter to clients, but was later picked up by the national media.

Although experts from the U.S. Geological Survey criticized the prediction as devoid of scientific proof, Browning's belief led to streams of people desperate to flee the area, panic buying, widespread closing of businesses and schools, general hysteria and a siege by news crews.

You'd have thought the pope

Iben Browning, who died in 1991, hit the headlines in 1990 with a prediction of a major earthquake along the New Madrid Fault. His prediction fizzled out, but not before causing some panic in southeast Missouri.

was coming to town.

While the only rumbling in New Madrid during that 1990 winter was the belly laughs of scoffers, many scientists caution that one false alarm shouldn't make us feel too self-righteous and ignore the need for preparedness.

Experts feel conditions make it inevitable that an earthquake with a magnitude of at least 6 to 7 will occur someday along the New Madrid fault — though probably not in your lifetime.

Unlike hurricanes, nobody can predict exactly when an earthquake will strike.

So groups like the Missouri Seismic Safety Commission — which sponsored a Missouri Earthquake Awareness Week earlier this month — are trying to remind people a major earthquake could suspend public services for at least 72 hours.

Almost an island surrounded by the Missouri, Mississippi and Meramec rivers, the St. Louis area is vulnerable to any natural disaster that could isolate us by destroying bridges, breaking underground utility pipes and silencing telephones.

While the group says there's no need for panic, part of its strategic plan for earthquake safety says it's not a bad idea to have a simple, cost-effective "insurance policy" — no, not just the mandatory earthquake insurance required by the state for homeowners.

Stashing away some bottled water, canned food, blankets and first aid supplies is useful.

Love on a Leash improves patients' morale

Volunteer canine drill team dances, performs tricks while other animals help orthopedic patients with exercises

By Kim Wright
Staff writer

ST. LOUIS

Some of the cuddly furballs known as man's best friend are bringing therapeutic smiles and motivation to patients all over the St. Louis area.

Love On A Leash, with its visiting pets and canine drill team, is an all-volunteer, non-profit organization that brings therapeutic entertainment to nursing homes, retirement homes, homeless shelters and hospitals in the St. Louis area.

"There's just something about the love of animals that really brings out the best in people," said Janice Mitchell, founder of the St. Louis chapter of Love On A Leash.

Orthopedic therapists at the Barnes-Jewish West County Hospital, Skilled Nursing Unit have found that it is easier to get some of their patients to do their exercises when the dogs are around.

"It gets the patients to do stuff they normally wouldn't do," said Virginia Molitor, activities director. "I can't explain it, but it helps a lot."

The dogs help because when patients play with them they are often doing their exercises without even realizing it, Molitor said.

"It boosts their morale. Their faces just light up," Molitor said.

Mitchell, a Maryland Heights resident, was the only member when she started the St. Louis chapter of Love On A Leash three years ago. The organization has grown to 36 people, 48 dogs, four cats and one bird.

"I had read about therapy dogs and decided I wanted to do this. It tugged at my heart strings and I absolutely enjoy it," Mitchell said.

A large portion of the organization came together after its members had completed an obedience class together, said Sandy Murphy, Love On A Leash participant.

All of the pets are screened for personality and temperament and are certified as therapy animals. Dogs have to pass a canine good citizens test before becoming part of the team. All dogs go through a minimum of three observations before joining the group.

All the animals are individually owned. Many of them are rescued dogs from shelters. Many of the animals are part of the drill team, which is synchronized obedience with the dogs.

"We usually make our entrance to the seven dwarfs' "Hi-Ho" song. It shows people we had some preparation before we came," Murphy said.

During the performance, trainers take time out to introduce the dogs and demonstrate some of the tricks the dogs can perform.

"By the time we go out to the audience, there's a lot more to talk about," Murphy, a St. Louis resident, said.

Bowling event will benefit Big Brothers

Montclair Bowl in Edwardsville will be the site of the 1999 Campaign For Kids — Bowl For Kids Sake to benefit Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Southwestern Illinois.

The event will be held Saturday, March 6. Participants can bowl at either 12:30 or 2:30 p.m.

Funds raised will provide guidance and support to at-risk children in Madison and St. Clair counties. Participants enjoy two free games of bowling, free shoe rental, door prizes and free Domino's pizza.

TheBANK of Edwardsville, a participant for more than 12 years, last year sponsored nine teams. Regional Research and Development Services of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville also participated in 1998 with three teams. Both organizations assisted Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Southwestern Illinois in raising $110,000 in pledges.

Grand prizes include 16 luxury box seat tickets with parking passes to the Kiel Center, round-trip tickets for two to any Southwest Airlines destination and a trip for two to Las Vegas. Area businesses have donated many gifts to be given away as door prizes.

Museum takes visitors back in time

History comes alive at county museum

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

From old maps and records to a shoe owned by the tallest man who ever lived, the Madison County Historical Museum can make a trip to Edwardsville well worth it.

The museum is located in the Weir House at 715 North Main Street. The house was built in 1836, and became the museum in 1964.

In addition to cased exhibits, period rooms and research facilities, the museum has special exhibits year-round.

Through March 14, a collection of photographs ranging from kittens to cathedrals by Granite City resident Kathryn H. Barkson will be on display.

Barkson is a member of the Madison County Historical Society's Board of Directors.

Also in March will be an Easter Greetings exhibit featuring greeting cards, decorated eggs and easter bonnets.

Museum Superintendent Anna Symanski said many of the items on display will be actual decorated eggs that have been saved over the years by Madison County residents.

In May and June, period wedding finery will be showcased in "Brides of Yesteryear," and May and June will be devoted to the sesquicentennial of Alhambra. Fall special exhibits will include quilts and coverlets, and the museum will end the year with historical Christmas decorations.

Symanski also said that throughout the year there will be a display called "Then and Now" looking back at the century.

The museum also maintains extensive historical and genealogical records, including books from what is considered the second oldest or perhaps even the oldest public library in Illinois.

The museum is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesdays through Fridays, and from 1-4 p.m. Sundays. It is closed on holidays.

For information about the museum or a group tour, call 656-7562.

Above, the reference rooms at the museum contain books from what is considered the second oldest library in Illinois. Below, furniture and other items donated to the museum make up many of the displays.

In May and June, period wedding finery will be showcased in "Brides of Yesteryear," and May and June will be devoted to the sesquicentennial of Alhambra.

Fall special exhibits will include quilts and coverlets.

Coffee shop set for Edwardsville Library

By Steve Whitworth
Staff writer

A new coffeehouse is coming to Edwardsville — and it will be located at the Edwardsville Public Library.

The library will begin seeking bids this week for construction of the coffee shop and bookstore area.

Bids also will be taken for renovation of the circulation desk, said Deanne Holshouser, librarian and director.

"Everything is finalized," Holshouser said about the design process.

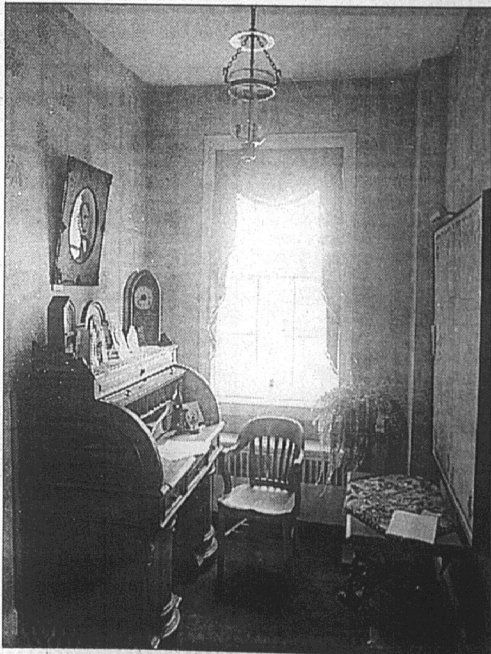

Contractors will be given at least 30 days to submit bids for the work. The design for the projects was done by Inland Group Inc., a design and marketing communications company owned by John Celuch.

"They also did a design for some display cases in the rotunda," Holshouser said. "Those are going out as alternate bids. If the whole project comes back as being too expensive, more than the board wants to spend, we can do the rotunda later and concentrate on this project."

She said the board hopes to keep the cost of the project under $100,000.

The library's board previously had decided on the name "Carnegie's" for the coffee shop and bookstore area. The name refers to the library's status as a Carnegie library — among those built with funds donated by industrialist and

'Office Space' slight but entertaining

Film is Mike Judge's 1st live action effort

By Brian Kaller
Staff writer

Do you brave rush hour traffic every morning, only to sit in a crowded office staring at a computer screen? Is your day plagued by clueless bosses and maddening co-workers? Do you think "Dilbert" is a documentary?

This movie was made for you. "Office Space," the first live action film by Mike Judge, is a slight but entertaining revenge comedy for and about cubicle dwellers.

Peter Gibbons (Ron Livingston) spends his days working for the Initech corporation. His office friends include Samir (Ajay Naidu), whose surname no one in the office can pronounce, and Michael (David Herman), a thin nerdy guy with the unfortunate last name of Bolton.

Other companions in this Dickensian cubicle are Milton (Stephen Root), the same character from Judge's cartoon shorts for "Saturday Night Live," and who we find was fired years ago but never told. Their smarmy boss, Lumberg (Gary Cole), wanders around the office creating hell for employees, who try to escape his approach by scuttling through the cubicles like mice in a maze. Peter's girlfriend talks him into visiting a hypnotherapist, who unfortunately drops dead while Peter is in still in a hypnotic state. The trance leaves Peter feeling so relaxed and nonchalant that he ignores his extra weekend work, his boss's persistent calls, and his girlfriend's leaving. He now has the courage to ask out the waitress he likes (Jennifer Aniston), and wanders into the office Monday morning in a

MOVIE REVIEW

T-shirt and shorts.

This coincides with the arrival of a pair of consultants who interview employees as a prelude to mass firings, but Peter sits down with them and tells it like it is.

The consultants interpret his confidence and straight shooting as management potential, and give him free rein to goof off until they find him a suitable promotion. But most of the other workers are to get the ax. When Peter tells Michael and Samir about their impending firing, the three hatch a plan to get back at the corporation.

Writer/director Judge is still best known for his MTV animated series, "Beavis and Butt-head." Like "The Simpsons" before it and "South Park" since, "B&B" was an original show by and for adults that was lambasted when it acquired an inadvertent juvenile audience. But Judge's next show, "King of the Hill," was a broader canvas which more clearly showed Judge's satire of working-class America.

Judge skewers all the characteristics of the modern office: meaningless management-jargon, the fake informality and the pent-up resentment. This was the subject of an underrated gem last year called "Clockwatchers," and this movie is very much in the same Dilbert-like vein. But while "Clockwatchers" was a more realistic and tender look at office workers, "Office Space" is a broad farce.

The movie falls short, though, by having far too little plot for its length. The movie is peppered with lots of little details that are funny and perceptive, but they are scarcely part of a story. The skit-sized premise lasts about an hour, after which Judge switches to the less successful caper plot. He pads the movie with a few irrelevant subplots, like Jennifer Aniston's role.

While its strength is showing characters with believable problems, the idea is diluted somewhat by the fantasy-like story. The story that was slight to begin with and leaves little to remember. But while it lasts, it's an entertaining diversion.

'Dead Man Walking' author at McKendree

By Mark F. Raeber
Correspondent

Sister Helen Prejean, whose 1993 book "Dead Man Walking" put her in the national spotlight and intensified the public debate surrounding capital punishment, will discuss the death penalty during a free lecture at 7 p.m. March 4 in the Bearcat Center of McKendree College in Lebanon.

During her address, Prejean will explore such questions as: Should society's right to protect itself include the use of capital punishment? Does the application of the death penalty discriminate against the poor, the indigent and racial minorities?

After the address, questions will be accepted from the audience.

Prejean, a nun in the Roman Catholic order of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Medaille, is a writer, lecturer and community organizer who has focused her work on opposition to capital punishment.

She has served as the national chairwoman for the Committee to Abolish the Death Penalty. She is a 1998 Nobel Peace Prize nominee. And she is a founder of "Survive," a victim's advocacy group in New Orleans.

Born in Baton Rouge, Prejean has lived and worked in Louisiana all her life. She began a prison ministry in 1981, counseling death row inmates in Louisiana's Angola State Prison. She has accompanied three men to the electric chair and witnessed their deaths.

In 1982 she became spiritual adviser to Patrick Sonnier, who had been convicted of killing two teenagers and sentenced to die in the electric chair. She came to know him, the families of his victims and the men whose job it was to execute him.

The experiences led her to write "Dead Man Walking," which became a 1996 movie that earned its star, Susan Sarandon, an Academy Award.

Her lecture is part of McKendree's George E. McCammon Memorial Distinguished Speaker Series, which this year focuses on topics devoted to "Matters of Life and Death."

Videos not what they used to be

Trivia

Kevin Carbery

By Kevin Carbery
Staff writer

On occasion, I will see music videos from the 1980s on television and be reminded of how entertaining they used to be.

Bands would produce videos that were at least visually interesting, if not highly engrossing.

I believe I have mentioned before that my favorite video of all time is the one Van Halen made for its "Hot For Teacher" song. It is funny and sexy. I still daydream about Miss Pye Ed.

Another video I always enjoy seeing is the one for "Sweet Dreams (Are Made of This)" by the Eurythmics. In it, Annie Lennox and Dave Stewart perform in a variety of settings while a cow inexplicably strolls by.

The guys from ZZ Top revitalized their careers through the use of videos in the 1980s. It was ironic that a trio of grubby Texas blues-rock performers made a bigger splash in a visual medium than many pretty-boy groups. The videos for "Sharp Dressed Man" and "Legs" are grabbers.

Some of the videos produced during the decade were so good that I would sit through them even if I did not particularly like the artist, such as The Artist Formerly Known as Prince. In the '80s, he was Prince, and he came out with a great video for "When Doves Cry" and with several other strong ones.

Today's videos, when you can find a channel that actually plays them, often are boring. They have become little more than concert footage with posturing and/or commercials for movies for which the performers have contributed songs. There are interesting ones produced here and there, but, not many.

For this week's trivia quiz,

HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, FEB. 25

It's a lucky time to catch up on neglected home matters, but don't take up contentions with loved ones just yet. Conversation tends to be very surface unless you can tap into a common emotional issue. People are more guarded under this Cancer moon, and you must see past the outer shell to get to the tenderness underneath.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Feb. 25). Unique talents, an openness to new ideas and the ability to connect on a soulful level with others is what catapults you over the top this year. Sign contracts in May—timely decisions on the job get you promoted. The romantic scene heats up in June when a casual acquaintance confesses deep feelings of love. Your best signs for passion are Scorpio and Sagittarius.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Luck is on your side today; place a bet. A colleague is trying everything to get your attention. A healthier lifestyle ends up saving you money. Research ideas before putting a project into motion.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Be especially meticulous with records and reports today; a VIP is watching carefully. Consider selling property and personal possessions. Accept an invitation from an intriguing new colleague. A check arrives.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Employers and co-workers applaud your creativity. The afternoon brings luck with collaborative projects. A lover misreads your mood. Refuse to be moved by threats; an adversary hasn't a leg to stand on.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Give yourself a wider margin for error. Volunteer work leads to valuable experience and even new love. Older relatives are particularly generous. Added work responsibilities keep you on your toes.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Discharge an unpleasant duty with grace and good humor. Keep calm yourself, and you help an anxious lover relax. A co-worker shows an unmistakable attraction to you. The workplace heats up.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). A hunch is proven correct. Luck with numbers and sales makes a long-awaited purchase possible. The old formula for romance is still working this evening. Explore options regarding new apartments and houses.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Relatives aid in your financial security when you re-establish (See HOROSCOPE, Page 11D)

Trivia night
is Saturday

Belleville Area College's softball team is hosting a trivia night from 7 to 10 p.m. on Saturday at the KC Hall in Collinsville.

The cost is $12 per person and includes snacks and attendance prizes. First, second and third place teams will receive cash awards. A cash bar will also be available.

Proceeds from the event will offset expenses for the Dutchwomen when they travel to Florida in March.

For information, call 235-2700, extension 5271.

ties — make an effort to socialize. Lovers reward you for your recent selflessness. Add the finishing touches to an important project.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Afternoon events are crucial to your future career. Channel your creativity in a new direction. Play the peacemaker once again, and domestic tranquility is restored. Tap into your inner strength through meditation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Politics influence office-hiring policies. A flash of insight enables you to arrange a business transaction to everyone's advantage. Make the most of your time off; an afternoon outdoors lifts your spirits.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Insist on getting financial information in writing. An estranged friend wants to pick up where you left off. Stop worrying about the future, and concentrate on the moment. Choose family get-togethers over outings with friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Turn on the charm, and you make another conquest. An ex-spouse or employer is unusually demanding. Money problems seem to solve themselves when you tighten your budget. You earn recognition on the job.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). A crush turns into a passionate love affair when you find your feelings are mutual. A new job or position is challenging as well as lucrative. Avoid making plans in haste. Consider a relative's needs first.

'October Sky' launches teen's film career

In Coalwood, W. Va., all the boys grow up to be coal miners, and Homer Hickam has no reason to think he'll be any different.

Too small to earn a football scholarship like his brother, Homer seems headed for the mines, just like his father.

Then the Soviets launch the Sputnik satellite.

As the townspeople of Coalwood gather to watch the tiny dot race across the "October Sky," something inside Homer clicks. Going against his father's wishes, he decides to build and launch his own homemade rocket, enlisting the help of three high school friends.

"Throughout the story, Homer is trying to get out," says Jake Gyllenhaal, who plays the teen-age rocketeer in the film. "In every scene you can feel him trying to get out of Coalwood and follow his passion. He wants to be a scientist, and his father can't understand that. So they constantly bump heads."

Homer's determination to launch the rocket — despite his father's opposition — propels him out of Coalwood and life in the mines.

"Homer really wants to get out of this town," Gyllenhaal explains. "And ... after this epiphany of seeing Sputnik, he does fall in love with science and rocketry and stuff like that."

"October Sky" is based on the book "Rocket Boys," written by Homer Hickam Jr., who retired from NASA last year.

The film also stars Chris Cooper ("Lone Star") as John Hickam, Homer's father; Laura Dern as Homer's high school teacher; and Natalie Canerday ("Sling Blade") as Homer's mother.

"October Sky," directed by Joe Johnston ("Jumanji," "Honey I Shrunk the Kids"), was shot during a four-month period in eastern Tennessee.

Gyllenhaal, 18, grew up in Los Angeles and now lives in New York, where he is a freshman at Columbia University. His father is Stephen Gyllenhaal, who directed "A Dangerous Woman" with Debra Winger.

1. How did you get involved in acting?

Gyllenhaal: I've always been an actor. It's my family business. My father is a director and my mother is a screenwriter and actually my sister is an actress, too. Also, I've been on sets almost half my life, so I've just watched the process and from that developed my own style and my love for the process of acting.

1 1/2: Did you act in plays in school?

Gyllenhaal: Oh, yeah. I took acting classes when I was younger, and I acted professionally a little bit. I think my parents hesitated from me doing it because when I actually started doing it, it started to pick up and they wanted me to concentrate on school. So being young and naive like I still am but like more so at a younger age, I think that I was forced to stay in school, much to my dismay. And then as I got older, I did a few things here and there, they let me sort of get a taste of it and keep that sort of passion alive.

2. Are you in every scene in the film?

Gyllenhaal: Yeah. Every scene. I think a lot of the film is, it's very dialogue-driven, but at the same time ... the camera is the biggest narrator and it's not necessarily always the words, and so I didn't realize that I had to do so much. And when I got there, it was a bit overwhelming at first, realizing that, looking at the schedule and seeing that I had no day off for three and a half months.

3. How does it feel when you see yourself on the big screen?

Gyllenhaal: I've seen it twice now and five minutes into the movie I always go like 'aren't they bored by now? aren't they bored with this face?' Because I'm looking around waiting for people to go, 'we've seen enough of this guy, he's already been in almost every single shot and every single second of this movie.'

4: You shot the film in coal mining country. Can you imagine working as a coal miner?

Gyllenhaal: I would never think of being a coal miner. I think it would be just a horrible job. But when it really comes down to it, it is so honorable in so many ways, and there are people who work down in the mines who are literally in love with it, like John (Hickam) is in the film.

5. Where did you get that great West Virginia accent?

Gyllenhaal: I have different accents that I do, and the accents sort of come out of this box in my head. What I did with the West Virginia accent was, I took what I believed to be like a sort of cliched Southern accent that I had always developed since I was a little kid to get attention at the dinner table, and we worked with a speech pathologist for like two hours, and that was it. All of us did. We just sort of tuned it to the colloquialisms that go along with the region.

Annual jazz event is tonight at BAC

The Belleville Area College Foundation will host its annual "Jazz Up" event from 7 to 9:30 tonight with familiar favorites and new attractions.

The 11th annual concert will continue its great tradition, only on a different day of the week.

The smooth sounds of the Jazz Incredibles along with the snappy tunes of BAC's Choir and Jazz Band will take the stage in the Jubilee Room of Fischer's Restaurant, 2100 West Main, Belleville.

The troupe features vocalist/pianist Jean Kittrell of Edwardsville, sousaphone player, Red Lehr of New Athens, and tenor banjoist, John Becker.

Jerry Bolen, BAC music faculty member, will sit in as a guest drummer. BAC President Elmer Kirchoff will dust off his trumpet and join the ensemble for a few numbers.

Tickets are $15 each in advance. Students will be able to attend for $8. Space permitting, tickets will be available at the door for $20 ($10 for students).

philanthropist Andrew Carnegie in the early part of the century.

The theme will include historical displays in the new areas to explain who Carnegie was and his role in the library's founding.

The board has decided on a logo for Carnegie's.

"It's a coffee cup with some steam coming out of it, and the lettering is neat," Holshouser said.

Plans call for the bookstore to feature such items as coffee mugs, bookmarks, greeting cards and used books. Artwork by local artists also might be for sale.

"It's going to be small," the librarian said. "We're not trying to compete with bookstores or card stores in town."

"We'll see what happens. If it's an absolute hit, we'll look at what will happen from there."

The lounge area and coffee shop will start small, Holshouser said.

"We will have some coffee and some bagels or a few pastries," she said. "We'll see what happens. If it's an absolute hit, we'll look at what will happen from there."

Holshouser is considering other uses for the renovated areas.

"I think the space will be lovely," she said. "I'm envisioning a speaker at lunchtime occasionally, or someone who will read poetry or talk about something they've written.

"People will bring their own lunches. We'll have drinks and a nice space to do it in."

The lounge area also might be used by high school students for quiet socializing and studying, Holshouser said.

"When the high school kids come in after school, they could have drinks there, talk some quietly, have a group to study, to be away from the quieter reading area," she said.

Gardener Expo set for March 20-21 at Gateway

The Weekend Gardener Expo sponsored by University of Illinois Extension will be held March 20 and 21 at the Gateway Convention Center, Collinsville.

Now is the time to reserve your space for an exhibit related to the garden or outdoor setting.

Information packets for exhibitor booths are available from University of Illinois Extension offices in Madison and St. Clair counties.

Two awards will be given, the People's choice and the Professional's choice.

Entries must be received by March 12.

All of this along with 15 classes on various points of gardening will be available at the Expo.
